PATENT INFORMATION:

Patent pending.

SUMMARY:

The Key Shark is a groundbreaking innovation that presents technology relating to the automatic car door unlocking system. Imagine that you’re walking to your car and find out that you lost your car keys. Now imagine a device that scans your fingerprint by pressing your thumb on the ultrasonic sensor that is installed next to the windshield. Which data is then processed with a high-speed CPU and automatically opens the car door for you. This invention is called the Key Shark. Like the old Proverb, “Necessity is the mother of invention”, the Key Shark was created to assist people on the go without utilizing their car keys. Conceived to reduce car lockups and ease the owner into tight situations.

The Key Shark is comprised of two major parts: the core system, which is made up of a motherboard and a multi-core CPU encased in a hard protective shell, and the ultrasonic sensor. The whole system is connected to the car battery and the car fuse box. An easy installation process makes the Key Shark the ideal product for everyone who believes in high-tech security and comfort.
